Suit dropped, but Haddish says the damage is done

Following a notice of dismissal filed by the plaintiffs for a lawsuit involving allegations of molestation against comedians Tiffany Haddish and Aries Spears, Haddish says the suit has cost her work.

The “Girls Trip” star talked to TMZ about the aftermath of her and Spears being accused of having “groomed and molested” two then-minor siblings years ago in a lawsuit filed this month in Los Angeles Superior Court.

“I lost everything,” she told a TMZ photographer when she was questioned at LAX Wednesday. “All my gigs are gone.”

According to the complaint, a copy of which was obtained by CNN, “Jane Doe” and “John Doe” were 14 and 7, respectively, when Haddish and Spears allegedly had them participate in sexually suggestive videos in separate incidents in 2013 and 2014.

At the time the suit was filed, an attorney for Haddish said the plaintiff’s mother “has been trying to assert these bogus claims against Ms. Haddish for several years.”

Jane Doe filed a notice of dismissal Tuesday.

“My family and I have known Tiffany Haddish for many years — and we now know that she would never harm me or my brother or help anyone else do anything that could harm us,” Doe said.

Depp dating his lawyer, but not THAT lawyer

Johnny Depp is reportedly dating one of his former lawyers — but not the one everyone expected.
The former “Pirates of the Caribbean” star, 59, is dating Joelle Rich, who represented the actor in his failed U.K. libel case against The Sun in 2020 and was married when she and the actor met, a source told Us Weekly.

In Depp’s recent defamation case in Virginia, there was speculation he was dating his lawyer Camille Vasquez, who impressed viewers with her sharp retorts and telegenic appearance. Vasquez called the dating rumors “an unethical charge” while speaking with People in June.
